Don, who was on leave in Massachusetts last week, broke his vacation to interview Edwin Land in Cambridge, Mass. Land was a key consultant on the U-2 and other reconnaissance projects. Don dropped his chapter on the U-2 off with Land one day and returned for a fuller and fruitful discussion of it another day.

Diane has been preparing the necessary letters of acknowledgement for visits by historians in the Office of the Secretary of Defense to the Eisenhower Library and by historians from the Department of State to the Johnson Library. These letters grant historians having the proper clearances access to CIA-related materials in these libraries.
